EU CITIZENSHIP, FEDERALISM AND RIGHTS

17–18 November 2017, Court of Justice of the European Union / University of Luxembourg

Convenors:

Prof. Dimitry Kochenov (University of Groningen) and Prof. Eleftheria Neframi (University of Luxembourg)

Organisers:

Amicale des Référendaires de la Cour de justice de l'UE

Université du Luxembourg

University of Groningen

Union citizenship is undergoing continuous evolution, given the constant tension between the EU's origins as an international economic organisation and its federal aspirations. EU law adopts a "constitutional" approach to citizenship, as Union citizenship is meant to be the fundamental status of nationals of the Member States. There is the risk, however, that in the context of the division of competences between the Union and the Member States the rights derived from EU citizenship, instead of being universally bestowed on all EU citizens, turn into a compensatory device to enhance the life chances of those who are perceived as "contributing to the internal market", leaving all the most vulnerable citizens in need of protection by definition outwith the scope of EU law.

The Conference organized by the Amicale des référendaires of the Court of Justice of the European Union, the University of Luxembourg and the University of Groningen aims at providing an opportunity of dialogue on the developments of EU citizenship law.
